// Eleanor Erickson, of Southport, N.C., began journaling at age 13 and today chronicles her daily life in a leather-bound book.

punctuation—it's so freeing—and it's nice to have every day of 10 years of my life chronicled. That includes the entirety of my son's life and most of my marriage. It's pretty awesome."

Typically, Erickson writes at night in her bed just before falling asleep. Sometimes she details her entire day; other times she just jots down a sentence or two. "I write about things that brings me joy or sadness, or I may write about the weather," she says. "It's just important that I keep writing every day."

While also embracing Facebook, blogging and Twitter, she says nothing replaces the feeling she gets when she reads her journal. "I can go back and read my Twitter timeline, but I'm never going to be able to pick it up and hold it in my hands and see how my handwriting has changed over the years or see the tear stains on the pages. You'll never get that from your computer." ★
